LECTION EXPENSES Complete Parts F and G

iformation on Candidate Expenses andidate election expenses are the costs of advertising in any redium that:

may reasonably be regarded as encouraging or persuading voters to vote, or not to vote, for an electorate candidate (whether or not the name of the candidate is stated), and are published, or continue to be published, during the regulated period for the general election (18 August to 16 October 2020), and are promoted by the candidate or with the candidate's authority.

lection expenses include:

the costs incurred in the preparation, composition, printing, postage and publication of the advertisement, and the reasonable market value of any material used or applied towards the advertisement provided to the candidate for free or below reasonable market value.

candidate's deposit or the costs of hall hire, refreshments, the conduct f surveys or opinion polls, free labour, the framework that supports oardings (other than a commercial framework) or replacing materials at have been destroyed through no fault of the candidate are not lection expenses.

our election expenses during the regulated period must not exceed 28,200 (including GST). It is an offence to spend more than this.

urther guidance is available in the Candidate Handbook - General lection and Referendums 2020.

Instructions on how to complete Part F

You should record all election expenses incurred in relation to candidate advertisements published, or continued to be published, during the regulated period for the general election (18 August to 16 October 2020) promoted by you or with your written authority.

For advertisements published both before and during the regulated period you should apportion the costs so that only a fair proportion of the expenses are attributed to being incurred during the regulated period. Only record the amount attributable to the regulated period in the return.

Disclose the total amount incurred on election advertisements (including GST) published during the regulated period even if payment for the advertising was made outside of the regulated period.

The description of the item should be sufficient to identify where and when it was published. Where another person has initiated the advertising you should also include the name of the promoter in the item description.

Election and referendum expenses can't be apportioned. If you published advertising during the regulated period that promoted you as a candidate and one or more referendum options, the full cost counts as a candidate election expense and a referendum expense. You only need to complete a referendum return if you spend over $100,000 on referendum advertising in respect of either referendum during the regulated period.

nstructions on how to complete Part G

'ou should record all election expenses incurred in relation to election idvertisements published, or continued to be published, during the egulated period for the general election (18 August to 16 October 1020) promoting your candidacy and the party and/or one or more their candidates.

reportionment is permitted between a candidate and party(ies) and ther candidate(s) based on coverage. Where an expense item has seen apportioned between you and the party and/or candidate(s) ou should ensure there is a consistent description and approach to apportionment in each return of election expenses. Record the name of the party or other candidate(s) featured in the advertising in the em description.

lection and referendum expenses can't be apportioned. If you ublished advertising during the regulated period that promoted you, your party and/or other candidates, and one or more referendum options, the total cost of the advertisement must also be counted separately as a referendum expense. You only need to complete a referendum return if you spend over $100,000 on referendum advertising in respect of either referendum during the regulated period.

For advertisements published both before and during the regulated period you should apportion the costs so that only a fair proportion of the expenses are attributed to being incurred during the regulated period. Only record the amount attributable to the regulated period in the return.

Disclose the total amount incurred on election advertisements published during the regulated period even if payment for the advertising was made outside of the regulated period.
